AS TO CIRCULATION

The representatives of the Cincinnati Daily Times having had the audacity to dispute the large circulation of the Cincinnati DAILY STAR, before the County Commissioners, when the award of the contract for publishing the delinquent personal tax list was about to be made to us, we propose to settle the question of circulation before the public as fully as we did before the Commissioners. We therefore propose to the Daily Times to prove the following propositions:

circulated more papers any one day during the present year than the Daily Times has during the whole six days of any week in that time.

SECOND-That the DAILY STAR circulates in the City of Cincinnati regularly more than three times as many papers as the Daily Times.

THIRD-That the DAILY STAR circulates in Covington, Newport, Ludlow, West Covington and Dayton, Ky.,—the cities on the opposite bank of the Ohio-more than ten times as many papers as the Daily Times.

FOURTH-That in the cities of Springfield, Hamilton and Piqua, Ohio; Lexington, Covington and Newport, Kentucky; Greensburg, Vincennes and Lawrenceburg, Indiana-three representative cities in each of the three States tributary to Cincinnati-the circulation of the DAILY STAR is more than fifteen times that of the Dally Times.

FIFTH-That the DAILY STAR has lists of regular subscribers in three times as many places as the Daily Times, and that these lists of the DAILY STAR average three times as many subscribers as those of the Daily Times.

We challenge the Daily Times to a contradiction of these five propositions, and offer to refer the matter to any fair person of their selection, and afford every means of arriving at the truth, so far as the circulation of the DAILY STAR is concerned.

The Cho.

To many it is unaccountable that people will flock by hundreds to witness the performances of amateurs in the dramatic line, but yet the fact remains that they do, and the attendance at Robinson's Opera-house last night was no exception to the mania, it being the first night of the third season of the Clio Dramatic Club. As amateur acting goes, it was a success, though the Club did not show off so well as they will in future, owing to the nervousness incident to first night. Some were not sufficiently a first night. Some were not sufficiently familiar with their parts, but this will be improved hereafter. The play was a four-act American comedy entitled "Style," and has few points of excellence, though the character of "Major Leonidas Brand" is a striking one, and was rendered by Mr. Roberts in good style. The leading female par was sustained by Miss Crow, and was por trayed finely, her acting at times being positively excellent. Mr. McCabe made hi first appearance with the Club and left in good impression. He has a fine voice and an easy, graceful bearing, and is a fortunate acquisition to the Club. Miss Marsh was pleasing in her rendering of "Mrs. Hyflite," a part which suits exactly her style of acting. The remaining parts were fairly rendered. The cast was as follows:
